JOY RIDE ENDED IN AN ACCIDENT

MILWAUKEE MAN SUED FOR DIVORCE AS HE STARTS ON LAST AUTO RIDE.

ONE MAN DIES OF INJURY

Two Women Also Hurt—Mystery Surrounds the Details of the Accident Early Saturday Morning.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 28.—On the Friday morning before he started on the automobile ride which ended fatally for him, Edward E. Rolfs, employed at the Terry Howling Alley, 209 9th street, was sued for divorce by his wife, Margaret E. Rolfs.

The complaint was filed by the wife's attorney, N. G. Wheeler, on Friday morning, March 25th. At four o'clock on Saturday morning, March 26th, Rolfs, who was 32 years old, was injured in a head-on collision between two automobiles at the east end of Grand avenue.

Rolfs was rushed to the Emergency hospital in an automobile, but died Sunday morning from his injuries. Mrs. Florene Schell, a west side resident and one other woman were injured in the accident that resulted fatally to Rolfs.

Mrs. Rolfs in her complaint charged drunkenness and cruel and inhuman treatment.

There appears to be some mystery as to the accident as Rolfs and the Schell woman were brought to the hospital by a man named Brown, in an auto who left them and disappeared.

Later a second auto arrived filled with men and women and admission for another woman was asked but on being told that names must be used they left.

The accident occurred Saturday morning about three o'clock on Grand avenue near the western limits of the city. Persons in the vicinity saw the party of motorists but did not know anyone had been injured.

Establishes Record.

For the first time in years the city treasurer will turn over real cash to the county treasurer. Tax collections this year have reflected the prosperity of the city and particularly the prosperity in regard to real estate. Some years the delinquent bill has amounted to considerably more than the city's share of the county tax although this has been as high as $100,000 or more. This year the city's part of the county tax will be high as usual as a levy was made to get the county on a cash basis but notwithstanding that the city treasurer will probably turn over $50,000 in cash, having already collected far beyond what the city itself requires.

FLORIDA WILL BE LAUNCHED MAY 12

Is the First Battleship to Be Constructed in Government Navy Yard Since the "Connecticut."

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, March 28.—The construction of the battleship "Florida" at the Brooklyn navy yard was launched over the progress made and are anxiously awaiting May 12, when the big battleship will slide into the East river on her maiden plunge. Barring a few minor details the vessel is ready now.

The launching of the "Florida" will be one of the greatest events in the history of the navy yard if the plans of the commander and Naval Constructor Master, in charge of building work, are carried out. Invitations have been sent to President Taft, his cabinet and nearly every member of the Florida delegation in congress will be on hand. Miss Helen Gould and Miss Anna Morgan, who have been invited to their headquarters to the naval yard, are expected to be present as special guests of honor.

The navy yard officials believe the launching should be as elaborate as possible on account of the "Florida" being the largest American battleship, except the "Olin", her sister ship. When she is finished and placed in commission she will be 1,000 tons larger than any battleship in service, and until the 26,000 ton "Armadillo" and "Wyoming" are completed the "Florida" will be queen of the seas.

"The Florida" is the first battleship to be constructed in a government navy yard since the "Connecticut" was completed at the Brooklyn yard nearly a decade ago. The navy yard officials are in hopes that when the "Florida" is finished and placed in commission they will be given the contract to build even a larger battleship than the "Florida" or her successors of the 26,000 ton class.

PLAN NEW LAWS FOR WHOLE STATE

INDUSTRIAL INSURANCE PLANS ARE NOW COMPLETE

COMMITTEE HAS ITS BILL

Sends Copies Out For Inspection of the Manufacturers and Workers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 28.—After several months of investigation into the subject of compensation for injured workmen, the joint committee of the state legislature on industrial insurance, has issued printed copies of tentative bills. These tentative bills are put before manufacturers and employers more as "feelers" than as a plan to which the committee is committed and it is the desire of three senators and four assemblymen that employers and employees shall read the proposed measures and give the benefit of their criticism and suggestions. To this end copies of the tentative bills are being sent throughout the state to interested persons. The committee will take no final action on the bills until every opportunity has been given for hearings. A hearing has been set for Tuesday, April 12, in the school board chamber of the Milwaukee city hall. It will be open to the public.

Senator A. W. Sausbourn of Ashland, chairman of the joint committee, will preside at the Milwaukee hearing. It is probable that the other members, with the exception of Assemblyman Valdemar Ingalls of Racine, who is in Germany studying certain phases of the foreign compensation system, will be present. They are Senators E. T. Fairchild of Milwaukee and John J. Blaine of Basehor, and Assemblymen C. B. Culbertson of Sawyer, Walter C. Isaac of Superior and George G. Brown of West Milwaukee. Secretary P. J. Wautoma has sent out more than 3,000 announcements of the meeting together with copies of the proposed measures and the public attention probably will be large.

The accident insurance plan as put forward by the legislative committee, provides absolute and definite compensation for injured workmen, or, in case of death, for their families. An employer who accepts the plan, agrees to pay a specified scale of damages to employees injured in his service. He is required to cover the risk by insurance corporation or in a mutual company. Every employee of a concern coming under the proposed system gives up his right to recover damages other than the compensation provided, unless upon hiring he contracts to the contrary. This practically does away with expensive suits by injured workmen. A concern coming under the proposed plan also escapes the heavy liability and risk of suffering exorbitant verdicts at the hands of a jury. The insurance premium, instead of being used to resist injury suits, as under the present system, goes to pay the injured workman for time lost. So long as the compensation is paid an injured employee, his employer is relieved absolutely from further liability for damages.

The method of paying for the proposed insurance has been one of the biggest questions before the committee. Many experts insist that the employer should pay the whole cost; that injuries are a hazard of the industry and therefore should be paid for just as are raw material and machinery. Others argue that the workman should pay a part of the cost and in seeking to prove their argument they say that employees will exercise greater care if they help to pay the cost.

The committee's tentative bill for compensation includes two optional sections on this subject. One provides that the employer shall pay the whole cost of the accident insurance. The other provides that he shall pay the total cost and then be reimbursed by the state to the extent of one-fifth or 20 per cent of the premium. These two ideas are presented in order that there may be full discussion at the coming hearings.

Compensation for injuries, under the proposed bills, is to begin after the end of the second week of disability, thus eliminating trivial cases in which workmen indulge in stimulation or "saddling." The scale of compensation is as follows: 65 per cent of the employee's wages during disability with a maximum of $300, which also is the maximum death benefit. If the workman is rendered wholly incapable to work and so helplessly that he requires a nurse, he is to receive his full wages. In cases of death the dependents of the victim are to receive three years' wages, minimum $100 and maximum $300, divided into regular installments covering a period of five years. This sum may be paid in a lump sum upon order of the county judge. The death benefits lowered in cases where no persons wholly dependent survive the victim. In case of no dependents a reasonable amount for burial expenses is provided.

Disputes of all kinds are referred to a board of arbitration of three members, of which the commissioner of labor and industrial statistics is to be a member ex-officio. The other two members are to be appointed by the governor.

In order to bring the compensation act into real effect, the committee has drafted a tentative bill designed to take away the common law defenses of employers in personal injury suits. This bill says in part:

"In any action by an employee to recover damages for personal injury, it shall not be competent for the employer to plead or prove as a defense, that the employee either expressly or impliedly assumed the risk of the hazard complained of, that the injury was caused in whole or in part by the negligence of any other officer, agent or servant of the employer in the discharge of, or by reason of the failure to discharge his duties as such; that the employee was guilty of contributory negligence."

DENTAL WORK

If you are wise you won't insist on a Dentist working night on your teeth.

Artificial light makes filling teeth largely guess work. Work done by daylight is far more reliable.

It is expensive for you to have to have your work done over in a few months just because the Dentist with all the artificial light he could obtain was not able to see and remove all the decayed matter before filling the tooth.

By daylight it might have been different. I do my work by daylight. I am constantly replacing work done by night working dentists. But you say, you can't come day time you are working.

I have yet failed to see the man or woman who could not arrange with their employees to get off for an occasional hour sufficiently to get their teeth put in order. Where there's a will there's a way.

Ring me up and we will set an hour mutually convenient and get started on that long needed dental work of yours.

As a result of some misunderstanding regarding the amount to be paid for refreshments at Charles Cantwell's cafe in the Melhorn Hardware company building, corner of Wall and Academy streets, Good Friday night, Clayton Bradley and Charles Cantwell got into an altercation with the proprietor. It ended in Cantwell's being a challenge and the three adjourning to the street to settle the issue in good old fashioned style. Mr. Bradley came off second best and proffered a complaint against the pair for a common assault and battery. Both entered pleas of "guilty," and paid fines and costs amounting to $6.85 each in municipal court this morning. "I don't think I'd follow three men out of my place for a few cents," said the court to Bradley. "I'd just charge it up."

Mr. Jones is represented by Atty. T. D. Wootley of Deloit, and the defendant by Atty. E. D. McNeel.

He took the animal to Broadway in his locomotive cab, leaving Jansville about 4 a. m. and turned it loose. The creature struck out on a bee-line overhead for the old home town and arrived here out of breath but happy before noon.

PINCHOT SCORED;
LAWYERS CLASH*ATTORNEY VERTREES ASSERTS
GLAVIS AND OTHERS TESTI-FIED FALSELY AT INQUIRY.*BRANDEIS' PLEA IS REFUSED*Committee Will Not Force Secretary to Become Witness—He Will Probably Testify Just Prior to Conclusion of Proceedings.

Washington, Mar. 28.—John J. Vertrees made the opening statement on behalf of Secretary of the Interior Hallinger and began the presentation of testimony in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation. The committee twice declined to grant the request of Attorney Brandeis, representing Louis H. Glavis and others, to compel the immediate attendance of Mr. Hallinger as a witness.

Testimony "Grossly False."
Mr. Vertrees declared that the testimony of Glavis and others would be shown to be "grossly false."
"There is no act of Mr. Ballinger," asserted the attorney, "to which it is possible to ascribe an unworthy motive or improper purpose otherwise than through the suspicion of a perverted mind, or the resentment of a discharged public servant, or the program of an unscrupulous political intrigue."

"Mr. Vertrees' statement," remarked with epigrams, in one of these, referring to the acts of officers of the last administration, the attorney said: "There was the reign of men, March 4, 1909, came the reign of law."

Fling at Roosevelt?
Although Mr. Vertrees was particularly referring to Messrs. Garfield and Pinchot, some members of the committee were inclined to construe the statement as a fling at Mr. Roosevelt, and so expressed themselves.

Mr. Vertrees also dwelt at length upon Gifford Pinchot and "the Pinchot service," as he chose to designate the forestry.

"Mr. Pinchot, vain and flattered by his own publicity bureau."

"Pinchot ceased to be the department of agriculture."

"He was exposed, and Mr. Hallinger had committed the unpardonable sin of defeating the ambition of a self-exaggerated man."

Makes General Denial.

Mr. Vertrees' statement was a long one, going into the details of practically every phase of the case. He said it would be shown that as regards the Cunningham claims and in all other matters Mr. Ballinger was "clean handed" and that his actions had been those of an honest and upright citizen and official.

He denied that Secretary Hallinger had ever drawn up an agreement, or any other sort of agreement, in the Wilson coal land cases.

Lawyers in Clash.

"The evidence now to be offered," said Mr. Vertrees, "will make all of these things so clear, so undeniable and so plain that this committee will cast about to discover how it is that men who knew as much of the truth as Pinchot and Glavis and Garfield and Davis and Newell knew could have had the daring to present themselves as sincere, honest harbingers of a suspicion, much less as persons really believing that they had knowledge of inculpatory facts."

The growing bitterness between Attorneys Vertrees and Brandeis manifested itself in several sharp exchanges.

The demands of Mr. Brandeis, first, that Mr. Hallinger appear as witness to be examined as a part of the case for the "prosecution" and later that he be required to appear as the first witness for the "defense" called out lively discussions between counsel and among members of the committee. The first request was unanimously denied. The second request was considered in executive session for 40 minutes, at the end of which time it likewise was denied.

Secretary Hallinger probably will not testify until toward the end of the proceedings.

ROOSEVELT TALKS TO EDITORS.Takes Opportunity to Preach Lesson on Religious Tolerance.

Calto, Mar. 28.—Theodore Roosevelt added 12 editors, representing practically the entire Arabian press of Egypt to the legions of his admirers and took the opportunity offered by the occasion to preach a lesson of religious tolerance to the assembled dozen, comprising Mohammedans, Copts and Christians representing every variety of opinion from the most earnest supporters of the present regime to the most rabid and powerful nationalists. They came in many cases as unfriendly visitors who, since Col. Roosevelt's arrival, have been publishing bitter diatribes against him and his speeches. In 20 minutes they were all smoking the pipe of peace, had buried their hatchets and enlisted in the army of Roosevelt cohorts.

TELLS $102,500
BANK GRAFT STORY*STEWART REPORTED TO HAVE CONFERRED DETAILS OF BRIBERY PLOT.*WILL INDICT BANKERS NOW*Two Confessed Embezzlers Have Sentences Postponed That They May Tell What They Know About Depository Ordinances.

Pittsburg, Pa., Mar. 28.—It is believed that District Attorney Blakeley is in possession of the $102,500 bank graft story from the lips of a councilman who has been charged with being one of the ring leaders in the bribery conspiracy.

"This step and the unusual activity of the county detectives seems to indicate to councilmen that any sudden departure from town would be hazardous, were the only developments of the day in the graft case."

Stewart Holds the Key.

Former Select Councilman Stewart, with his attorney, former Gov. W. A. Stone, called on District Attorney Blakeley and shortly afterward Asst.

ant District Attorney Seymour, followed by a corps of stenographers, flocked to Blakeley's office. When they emerged, Blakeley and Seymour were smiling, but would give out no definite statement. The district attorney, however, has repeatedly announced that Stewart held the key to some of the "big ones" implicated in the graft conspiracy.

Blakeley knows the whole story of the bank deals, and he knows when the truth is being told. If Stewart has made a clean breast of it, indictments against certain bankers are assured.

The grand jury in its presentment said Stewart was the man who was paid $45,000 in the Hotel Imperial, New York. The name of the man who paid it is known and Stewart's evidence would be in the line of corroboration.

Embezzlers to Testify.

Although there was no statement by the court or the district attorney, it is the belief about the courthouse that the postponement of sentence in the case of Harry E. Muehlbranner and Charles Veerker, confessed embezzlers of funds from the Workingman's bank, was for the purpose of having them appear before the grand jury, to tell what they knew regarding the part their bank played in the furnishing of funds for the passage of the bank depository ordinances.

Freeport, Ill., Mar. 28.—After a bitterly contested trial lasting two weeks, Dr. H. A. Arnold was found guilty of an attack upon Alta Rosenstiel, a girl at the time under 16 years of age. Punishment was fixed at four years in the penitentiary.

The attack occurred a few weeks after the doctor had performed an operation on the girl for appendicitis. Dr. Arnold is middle-aged, has a large practice, is wealthy, happily married, and has been active in church work and the local option movement.

One to four outlets, concealed, ready for fixtures, each.....$2.50

One to four outlets, exposed, ready for fixtures, each.....$2.00

Additional outlets, ready for fixtures, either exposed or concealed, at,

It has five top burners, one giant, three single and one simmering burner. It is built high enough so that no stooping is required. The lines of this range are simple, even severe, yet giving the effect of substance in material and tone in finish. It is coated with lacquer that gives a rich, even black, clean to handle and very lasting.

The burners give a short sharp flame very close to the cooking utensil and it has been tested and proven to be the highest in efficiency of any gas range burner in use. $30.00.

PEANUT BUTTER.

Peanut butter is not merely a substitute for creamy butter, but is almost pure fat, but a substantial food in itself, the richest of all foods, according to the comparative table given in the circular on the peanut issued by the department of agriculture. Peanut butter is mostly made from ground Spanish peanuts boiled in cotton seed oil or roasted dry. One brand is made from the Virginia peanut roasted in the shell. By immersing shelled Virginia peanuts long enough in hot water to make the skins easily removed and grinding them in a small mill a better butter can be made.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"When love comes slinging to his heart
That would not wake for me,
I think that I shall know his joy
By my own ecstasy."

And though the sea were all between
The time their hands shall meet
My heart will know his happiness
So wildly it will beat.

And when he bends above her mouth,
Rejoicing for his sake,
My soul will sing a little song.

—Sara Tensdale.

That is my ideal of perfect love.
It seems to me that one does not love in the best and deepest way unless one can say, "I would want to see the one I love happy even if it had to be with someone else."

Of course it is terrible when one must stand aside and see anyone for whom one cares deeply happy with someone else, but I think one should know that even under such conditions, one could sing a little song of rejoicing for his happiness in one's soul, even if at the same time the heart was breaking.

If men and women tested their love by asking themselves if they could feel that way under those conditions, and none married who could not honestly believe that they would, there would be no divorces.

More infatuation, more desire for possession, could not stand the test, and these are the limitations of love that deceive so many and bring about the marriages predestined at the altar to end in the divorce courts.

I am not often told that this ideal of love is an impossible one.

I do not believe it. Indeed, I know it is not, in at least one case.

For out of the darkness of anonymousness a cry came to me the other day from a woman with a breaking heart.

"I am a woman who has been forgotten," she wrote with the simplicity of suffering. "But I was never in love with his love of me. I loved him for himself so I still love him, and love him so much that I really want him to be happy even if it is the other woman that brings it to him."

That is an actual quotation from a genuine letter.

Jealousy is always a sign of love, but only of a certain kind of love. I do not think the people are right who say that you can have jealousy without love. I don't think you can any more than you can have smoke without fire. But I do believe that there is love great enough to be absolutely without jealousy—the great consuming fire too hot for smoke.

My heart aches for that woman. And yet, although she is undergoing the worst mental suffering on earth—that of unrequited love—I believe she has much to be thankful for in that she is capable of feeling that kind of love.

It is not an impossible ideal.
It is a hard one, but hard does not mean impossible.
And for all my friends I can wish nothing better than that they may feel a love capable of such heights, but never actually have to scale them.

Sore Throat Cure.
Gargling for a sore throat every half hour with lemon juice and water will often give relief. If the trouble is from the stomach swallowing half a cupful twice a day is helpful.

JUST BREATHING.

By MARY RUSSELL.
We have all laughed at the enthusiasm of the new mother who called the friends around her and showed the baby and said:

"Just see how bright he is! He just breathes, and breathes, and breathes!"

But after all the story isn't so very funny when the scientists tell us that not half the grown people know how to breathe.

We are all so used to delegating this function to the subconscious self that we hardly take time to consider it seriously and yet, we are told, that half the cases of malnutrition are due to the subject not having learned to breathe properly.

The question of rhythmic breathing and of a full use of the lungs is being taught seriously. Teachers in schools are regarding it as a great part of their duties, since only a well nourished child is capable of doing good mental work.

The half starving genius of the romance is the person who is responsible for the eccentricities which were once considered a mark of the individuality of "genius." The genius of today is a healthy, normal person who has either cultivated the great gift which came with his birth, or so concentrated on one side of his mental powers as to rise above his fellows. He does not faint at the scent of a rose, nor grow frantic at the mewling of a cat. He can take a normal part in the family circle and enjoy the beautiful world in which he has been placed without restrictions. And he has a wholesome contempt for the fads that are our marks of genius to the average mind. But he has health! He breathes deeply and thinks deeply.

Mark Twain once said it was the "senselessness of human nature to raise barriers against progress." Improvements, and condemn them without investigation," but the matter of diet and breathing has gone beyond the experimental stage.

Study your method of breathing. Do you inflate your lungs and hold up your chest and form little hollows at the base of the neck? Then you are on the wrong track. Hold the chest in fairly normal position, stand erect and then fill the lungs, and notice the walls of the abdomen expand. In expelling the breath the chest will rise normally. Chest expansion is an artificial method. Teach the child to cleanse the lungs thoroughly upon rising, to use the nostrils for breathing, and to fill his little lungs full of fresh air with every breath.

Many a heartless over-strict children will be avoided when mothers and fathers take this matter up with the seriousness it deserves. A child has a right to health. What are you doing as mother, as father, or as teacher, to help him come into his heritage?

HOUSEHOP
BY AUNT
Rose Terrill

BY ROSE TERRILL.

The spring days bring to the house-keeper thoughts of cleaning. Don't make your whole family miserable about it, however. Take the matter in time and do not rush.

Don't try to clean out the little and closets and various other holes. Have three piles of everything as you sort them over—one for the furnace of things that you decide will not be worth saving, one for the charity that you particularly favor, and one that you think are things worth keeping.

Be generous in the first pile, and just in the second, and very modest about the last. We are so prone to hoard things that we will never use, and that we know we will never use, for some unknown sake to our conscience.

I know one woman who saves spite bread a certain length of time, and then disposes of it. She knows her family will not use it. They are cranks on the subject of old bread, yet she cannot get her own consent to get rid of it at once. She feels guilty about it as long as it is a bit soft, but as soon as it is hard then it is easy to throw it away. Are you like that about the moth food, with which you fill your closets? That's what half the stuff is that we save—just moth food, when the moths have riddled it then we can throw the old rubbish away with a clear conscience.

Don't send a lot of old woolen things that will have to be cared for during the summer to some one that lives in three rooms. Have the stuff cleaned, wrapped in tar paper and safely deposited, after marking in some shelf in your closet devoted to charity. When fall comes send it where it will be of use. Then you will be entitled to the gratitude that will be given you, but the poor little housewife will hardly be thankful for such a gift now.

If the attic is cleaned first, and this may be done at once, there will be a safe place in which to store all the articles you put away for the summer. As they are cleaned and packed you will find your work in the living rooms growing lighter.

If you are so unfortunate as to be without an attic, then apply the same rule to a spare room. Have it cleaned, and place in it all cleaned articles, and securely close the doors. Much of the terrors of the spring cleaning will be eliminated if a little care and time is taken.

The new vacuum cleaners will be a boon to the housewife as well as the family, but it will be a long time before the old-fashioned woman will believe that it really does the work.

Carpets on the line, and clouds of dust flying, will continue to be her ideal for many seasons, but she is learning that a little at a time is better than the old-fashioned spring upheaval.

Longevity of Birds.

The duchess of Bedford is an enthusiastic ornithologist. In an article in British Birds she gives some remarkable instances of longevity among birds in her own collection. A Barbary dove which has been in the duchess' possession for fifteen years was left her by an old woman who also owned it for fifteen years and who always said it was an old bird when it was given to her.

First Breech-Loader.

A breech-loader called the Ferguson was in use in the revolutionary war. The first United States patent for a breech-loading musket was granted to Thornton & Hill of North Yarmouth, Mass., May 31, 1811. The first successful breech-loading shotgun was that of Lafaucieux, invented about 1862, following many impractical devices.

INSURGENTS THREATEN TO DETHRONE CANNON

Would Take Away from Speakership
All Power to Influence Legislation.

Washington, Mar. 22.—According to reports in circulation about the capital many of the insurgent Republicans of the house, who voted to retain Speaker Joseph Cannon in the chair, have been receiving advice from "home" and it is said these advisers were far from being assuring to them.

Following close upon this information come statements from several that the war against "Cannonism" is to go on to the extent of ultimately causing the dethronement of Speaker Cannon, the election of his successor, and the complete reformation of the rules of the house. The overthrow of the speaker and the taking away from the speakership of all power to influence legislation unduly are aimed at.

A proposition to remove Speaker Cannon by means of the combined vote of Democrats and insurgents and substitute in his place Asher C. Hinds, the parliamentarian of the house, is one of the plans which several insurgents advocated.

Mr. Hinds is a Republican and is a candidate for nomination for congress from New England. His present duty is to formulate rulings for Speaker Cannon.

BEULAH L. SUNDERLAND IS DEAD.

Divorced One Week—Dies in 'Fiasco of Broken Heart.'

San Francisco, Mar. 22.—A broken heart is assigned by two physicians as the cause of the sudden death in Berkeley of Beulah Stubbs, daughter of Traffic Manager Stubbs of the Hawaiian system, and former wife of John Sunderland, Democratic national committee man for Nevada.

Miss Stubbs, who resumed her maiden name following the divorce she secured from Sunderland at Reno last week, died at the home of Mrs. B. E. Brooks, an old classmate of hers.

Dr. Morton Gibbons, her brother-in-law, said that there was no doubt that the ordeal attending her divorce from Sunderland had superinduced the condition that caused the young woman's sudden death.

PANIC IN CHURCH; TWO HURT.

Sinking of an Over-Crowded Balcony Causes Wild Scene.

New York, Mar. 22.—The Italian Church of St. Michael was the scene of a wild panic at the morning service when an over-crowded balcony began to sink. By some miracle the thousand people who crowded into the church built for 700 escaped without serious injury.

When one of the pillars supporting the balcony gave way there were wild cries of "Fire!" and "The church is caving in!" The church has but one narrow door leading to the street and there was a hopeless jam until Sergt. Hughes and six patrolmen arrived. Two women were badly injured.

BANKER SHORT $100,000, GUILTY.

Indianapolis, Ind., Mar. 22.—William H. Marker, former cashier of the First National bank of Tipton, Ind., was found guilty of embezzling $100,000 of the funds of the bank by a jury in the United States district court.

Noah H. Marker, who was assistant cashier of the bank and was indicted jointly with his brother, will plead guilty, according to an announcement made by his attorneys.

Judge Anderson will sentence the brothers together during the week.

Cherub
Devine

By SEWELL FORD

Copyright, 1909, by Mitchell Kennerley

"Haven't read a paper since I've been here, Nick, and don't intend to. When you go back tell my brokers to keep cool."

"But the Bates-Hummer crowd mean mischief, Cherub. There's a lot of them in a big pool, and they're hammering your railroad holdings right and left. Some one has been leaking information, and they're hitting you where it will hurt. When I saw how things were going I began wiring you. Didn't you get the messages?"

"I knew those must be from you, Nick; no one else knew where I was."

"But why didn't you answer?"

"Well, I didn't read them, for one thing; I was too busy. We were having a bully time, the countess and I, feeding the swans."

"Feeding the swans?" Mr. Nicholas Walloway made a gesture indicating despair.

"Did you ever watch swans squabble for sweet crackers, Nick?"

"Crackers! You might just as well have thrown bunches of thousand dollar bills at them. Why, Cherub, P. Z. and N. opened at 3:30 this morning. As soon as I found you hadn't shown up I started for you. I had my car meet me at the station, and it's outside now. We can just make the 11:30 Jack, and perhaps you'll be in time to stop them before it's all over. Come on; let's start."

"Sorry, Nick, but I couldn't think of it. I'm taking a holiday, you see."

"What? Do you mean to say that you're not coming?" Mr. Walloway gazed doubtfully at the Cherub.

"Not today, Nick."

"Oh, I say, Cherub, don't be an—"

He checked himself with a swift glance at the countess, whose brown eyes instantly sought the cherub's stuff in her lap. "Don't be foolish," he continued. "I haven't told you all—the worst, you know."

"Well, you can tell me all about it tomorrow, Nick."

"Tomorrow? Grant Scott, man, you don't understand! They mean to finish the job today. Tomorrow night as well as next year. Why, you've barely a fighting chance left now, and I don't know that you have that. The street is wild with it."

"I guess things are not as bad as all that, Nick. I'll be down bright and early in the morning."

Mr. Walloway put both hands on Mr. Devine's shoulders.

"Cherub," he said, speaking with an effort at calmness, "you're too good a man to be beaten by a gang like that. You must come back. You have friends—lots of them. We'll get together and go after that crowd. Besides, it's the old Bates-Hummer crowd," urged Walloway. "You know them. They're like a pack of mangy wolves."

"Yes, you're right, Nick. They've snapped at my heels many a time."

"And now they're at your throat."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her

Knoxville, Tenn. — "I suffered with pain low down in my right side for a year or more and was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and am glad to say that your medicines and kind letters of directions have done more for me than anything else and I find the best physicians here. I can do my work and rest well at night. I believe there is nothing like the Pinkham remedies."

Mrs. CLARA FRANKS, R. F. D. No. 3, Knoxville, Tenn.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is for sale at Smith's Pharmacy, The Rexall Store, as well as other Patent Medicines advertised in this paper.

did so he met the earnest eyes of the Countess Veechi. Until then he seemed to have forgotten her presence.

"There!" exclaimed the Cherub. "I had almost forgotten. I promised to drive you into the village this afternoon to buy more stuff for making cobwebs, didn't I, countess?"

Mr. Walloway threw up his hands. "Devine," he said hoarsely, "I'll wait outside in my car for just three minutes and a half. If you are not there by the end of that time I'll have to go back without you."

"All right, Nick. Much obliged for coming."

"But you'll send some word, even if you don't go, won't you?"

"You might give my regards to old Hummer."

Mr. Devine had followed his friend to the door. Now he returned, to find that the countess had been looking expectantly after him. The cobwebby affair had been dropped hastily to the floor and lay tangled at her feet.

"You are making this sacrifice to keep me from leaving the house that was once my home?" she said. "Then I must tell you that I shall not accept it. You must go at once."

"Oh, those fellows are always ready for that sort of thing. I suppose they will do more or less damage, but I guess I can stand it."

"You must go back with Mr. Walloway. Please, go!"

"No; I can't."

"Can't! Why can you not go?"

"Because—well, because I think more of showing you that I'm not a born gambler than I do for all the railroad stock in the country. That's why."

"This came straight from the heart of Cherub Devine. And the countess could see and hear. She understood. "Oh, oh!" There was surprise in the cry, perhaps joy. For an instant she hid her face in her hands. When she took them away the spots of color were gleaming beneath her brown eyes. Shyly and very demurely she came to him with clasped hands and gazed up at him as if to search for the truth in his face.

"I believe you," she whispered. "Oh, I do believe in you! But I want you to go. Go this time, to please me."

"Honest? Are you sure you want me to go?" He gripped his hands tightly at his side as he looked at her.

"Yes, yes! Go, and—smash them!" The fighting spirit of all the old Continental Hewittsons must have blazed up and burned anew in her brown eyes. "Don't let them beat you. Smash them hard!" She made a gesture with her soft, white hands to illustrate what she wished him to do. The Cherub smiled.

"But you will not run away while I am gone, will you?" he demanded. "Perhaps not—if you smash them hard enough. Hurry! He is starting."

She whirled him about by the shoulders and pushed him toward the door. "Hold on, Nick, I'm coming!" shouted the Cherub.

The countess ran down the steps and tossed a package to him.

"I almost forgot," she said breathlessly. "I wanted to ask you to sell those for me. They're some stocks or bonds or something, and I want them sold. That's all."

The inner works of the rebel began to whirr violently, the big car leaped forward, and a moment later the Countess Veechi could see only a little cloud of dust that showed through the trees lining the road to the village.

It remained for a train boy to disclose just how the public viewed the crisis in Mr. Devine's affairs. Halfway to the city the boy came aboard with the early afternoon edition. From the headlines it was evident that the disturbances in Wall street had become a popular topic, the sensation of the hour.

One enterprising journal indulged in a half page cartoon, which was supposed to represent the situation. "It

In The Churches

Dan Freeman Bradley was born in Bangor, Me., March 17, 1857, his parents being Dan Beach and Sarah Bradley. His mother was one of the first women graduates of Oberlin college to take the A. B. degree. Dan was graduated from the same college in 1882, and from Oberlin Theological seminary in 1885. He was given the degree of D. D. while acting president of Yankton college in 1902, the year he accepted a call to the pulpit of Park congregation church, Grand Rapids, Minn. He was married in the Grand Rapids ministry for 14 years, until 1902, when he accepted the presidency of Iowa college at Grinnell, Iowa. He remained at head of the college until called to his present charge in Cleveland.

Psalm xxx, 8: "God and upright is the Lord." Genesis 1:31: "And God saw every thing that he had made, and behold, it was very good."

We often hear people say, "This is a hard world." An idea more popular formerly than now, is that the world is fitted up to be a torturing place for people who live in it, a vale of tears. No Quaker said—a sort of indignation whose souls are put upon the rack with demons to turn the screws. Now there is no justification in that view. When God made the world and looked upon it He saw that it was good. It was a beautiful world, sprinkled with flowers, swarming with life, bright with light, warm and soft and gentle in the embrace of all living things, fertile and furnished with a variety of those things that nourish and sustain life. It was a good world, better than any or none of the things of this world. It was a good world, better than any or none of the things of this world. It was a good world, better than any or none of the things of this world.

and we admire it, but the clay that formed that thing of art lies all around us. No, God has not put us in a world to eat three meals a day and sleep ten hours for three scores and ten so that the world may have some folks in it to consume the wheat and pack that to grow thereon, and then to go to the mill to be ground to suffer and to grow, to gather experience, and fight battles, to have our compassion and pity drawn out and to send us on errands of help. "I pray not that thou shouldst take them out of the world, but that thou shouldst keep them from the evil one." That a man or woman undergo all of this experience and yet not be defeated or fall, or be a slave to evil, that is his anxiety regarding us; his prayer for us is that suffering shall not make us sour, that hardship may not make us pitiless, that difficulty may not lead us to disaster. And for the soul of heroes stuff this is a mighty good world.

He leaves us in the world that we may be improving it, grow ourselves. He attaches us for a time to this planet, that the planet may have the benefit of our love for it, may come into sympathy with his great interests, and so grow into likeness to his Father.

Bulvard Klipping has a fine story called "The Ship That Found Herself." All now and freshly painted, she sailed forth upon the great Atlantic for her first voyage. But as the captain's wife said, "She isn't a ship yet." She is an aggregation of rivets and valves, "but she isn't a ship yet," not till she battles the big seas of the Atlantic and all the parts of her as they drive through the tempestuous ocean, learn to give and take, learn to work together, to resist the outward pressure, and the inward strain, and till she picks up her pilot and comes into New York "covered with salt and red mud, her funnel dirty gray, two wheels carried away, the bridge battered, and innumerable small repairs needed in her engine room, was she a ship, a ship that had sailed, a ship that had found herself."

Jesus tells his disciples "Ye are the light of the world." Now light is never made out of nothing. Something is burned up in making light. It may be coal, or oil or gas, even radium, that most active and lasting of substances, will finally exhaust itself in giving out its light.

So you and I better not try to bear any light if we are not willing to give ourselves even to the uttermost, in that service. Yet who of us, made as we are, God's children, in God's good world, would be willing to be mere consumers of light? No, my friends, we are constituted to be incandescent and we never can be satisfied with ourselves, we shall live discontented and unhappy, live until we begin to make our lives shine.

You have in your own mind men and women who are thus incandescent, some who were of very close kin to you, some whose light still shines on, though they are gone. I suppose if our great sun were blotted out at this moment, it would still not lose its light bearing service for the rays of light it has started forth for all those ages are still travelling and will be travelling for centuries to find in some remote realm of God's infinite universe some dark object which they may yet illuminate. So the lives of good men and women who have made their light to shine still fall with gracious blessing upon many who never saw them, nor heard their kindly voices. For it's a good God in a good world.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Jamesville Daily Gazette, March 28, 1870.—Jottings.—The different ward caucuses in this city on Saturday evening, were immensely lively affairs and the attendance was the largest that we have noted for years. Several well prepared states were knocked into "bits," and some of the members go about the streets, refusing to be comforted. Some of our democratic fellow citizens felt that it would be a good time to see how it would feel to vote the Republican, and manifested a desire to take a hand in the nominations. By a vote of the caucuses the most of them

To any manufacturer or agent who during the next 30 days furnish a sample of their regular rod that is as good as Dodd & Struthers Lightning Rods. Samples to be placed in the hands of disinterested parties, test to be made by some laboratory or such other investigation as may be deemed necessary.

I make this offer as there are agents and manufacturers of lightning rods who are claiming that they can sell to the people as good or better lightning rods as Dodd & Struthers and a great deal cheaper in price.

As lightning rods are bought for protection I believe the public will appreciate this test.

Beware of imitators. He who would wear the spurs should win them. How many will meet the test (of copper)?
